

lashed up this gentleman, provoked his strange conduct, will now give way to feelings of the deepest sympathy for him in great calamity. It seems Providential the country has not to mourn the loss of an army through the loss of the mind of a general into whose hands were committed vast responsibility of the command in Kentucky.—Cincinnati Commercial, 11th.

Letter from Butler County.

AN EFFORT TO TAKE CAPT. NETTER, AND THE ROUSSEL-JOHN C. BRICKENRIDGE AND HIS EXPLOITS.

LOANSBORO, BUTLER CO., KY., December 13, 1861.

Editors Democrat—Gentlemen: I propose giving you some further information of the skirmishes in this county between our forces and the invaders of Kentucky. The day after the battle at Borak's Ferry, 70 of the rebel cavalry went to Rochester, on Green river, and said they had come to take Capt. Netter. They went into a new house, unoccupied, opposite the Ferry, and considered to take some refreshment before they proceeded further. Netter's encampment was out some distance on the opposite side of the river, but before the poor fellows had taken any of their meal, to their utter astonishment Capt. Netter had appeared with six of his men, on the river, and commenced firing on them. They got out of the house in a hurry, leaving it well marked with blood, took shelter behind the house and other covers, and returned the fire, but soon got tired of the pillage and retired. In Netter's boy, who had been fired at, he avoided any further danger they mounted and took through the farm back of the town, opening the fences.

They had to enter the road about two hundred yards from the river, when the rebels again fired upon them, and one of them was seen to fall from his horse, and was killed in the engagement, and not one of Netter's men hurt. The rebels reported they had killed fourteen of Netter's men.
This is a fair specimen of Southern bravery in this section.

But I will give another case: The ex-Honorable John B. Brackenridge, General in the rebel army (John C. Brackenridge entered the rebel army on the 24th of last month, with four regiments, some one hundred and fifty cavalry, and six field pieces; also having one hundred and twenty-five wagons. They took all of Sandy Kinnison's corn, then took possession of H. B. Wiggins' mill and ground it into meal. Mr. Kinnison proposed to give them two wagon loads if they would let the meal alone, which they agreed to do; but returned and said his corn was the property of the Government, and that they must have it all. I learn they paid him in Tennessee money.

They also went across the river to Ira Elliot's, who had about 50 head of good fat hogs. They drove seventy to the river, opposite Rochester, and commenced killing on Tuesday morning, the 20th ult., when they were suddenly ordered to cross the river, which was done, leaving fifty head unkilled, and the brave General mustered his forces and left, making their prize what meat was made of Kinnison's corn, twenty of Elliot's hogs, and what salt was on hand—I am not informed as to the quantity. We are left to draw our own conclusions as to their speedy exit; but we think they will speak for themselves. On Monday night, about 150 of their cavalry went into Muhlenburg county. Captain Netter got wind of it and thought they were aiming for Paradise. He took some force and took his position out on the road. When the rebels came up, the boys again fired up on them, which threw them into great confusion and caused a hasty retreat to headquarters. The citizens of Rochester say they were making off with the night after the rebels, and the rebels said some had died that night. This accounts for the theirs speedy exit. More Southern bravery.

LATEST FROM SOMERSET.

The Frankfort correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette telegraphs the following on the 11th. It gives two days' later news than our last letter from Somerset, and is exactly the reverse of the telegraphic news we published yesterday morning from Lexington. This may be true, though we are inclined to believe it a mistake. Had Zolli-coffer been on the way to Somerset on the 10th, our attentive correspondent would have written immediately.

News received this evening from Somerset leaves little doubt of Zollicoffer's advance and a conflict impending. J. R. Richardson, postmaster at Somerset, writes under date of December 10, "Zollicoffer has his troops all on this side the river, and we expect a fight to-morrow" (Wednesday).
We have three Ohio regiments, two Tennessee and one Kentucky, with two batteries Zollicoffer is reported to have from ten to fifteen hundred men. Three private letters received here this evening from reputable citizens of Somerset confirm the above statement, and say Zollicoffer crossed the Cumberland some twenty miles below Walkeboro, on a bridge of logs.

The latest estimate of his force is nine thousand, which is probably nearer the truth than any of the rest. If the news is reliable, a fight probably took place to-day.
Schoepf is regarded here as perfectly secure, and there are no apprehensions as to the result. The three Ohio regiments there are the 17th, 31st, and probably the 35th. The 14th, which belongs to that brigade, is understood to be still at Lebanon.

[Special Dispatch to the Missouri Democrat.]

CATRO, Dec. 11.

A squad of cavalry, under command of Major J. S. Mudd, and two companies of infantry, under command of Lieut. Col.
Rhodes, were sent out in pursuit of the rebels, and on this side the river, and overhauled them at Burton station, on the Charleston road.

Our forces took sixteen prisoners, and a lot of horses and firearms. We lost only one man, and were unable to learn the amount of their loss, if any.

The gunboat Benton has been off, and is on the way here. The steamer Montgomery struck a snag at the head of Devil's Island, and sunk, and afterwards broke in two.

Among these Tennessee refugees arrived at Paducah on the night of the 9th. The whole line of the night is guarded by pickets to prevent their leaving the State, but they are eluded by taking to the woods until they get under the protecting arms of the troops at Paducah.—Bulletin, 12.

RIVER MATTERS.—The river was still falling last night with six feet six inches water in the canal by mark. The weather yesterday was delightful. The levee presented a very dull and uninteresting appearance, there being no arrivals nor departures except the regular packets, which are doing only a tolerable trade. The towboat C. Miller dropped several boats loaded with coal through the canal, and will leave this morning for Cairo with about 100,000 bushels of coal for

ON HENDERSON—The Eugene, a good boat, well hour. The Big Gray Eagle is a fine, large boat, with excellent accommodations, and in charge of experienced

We learn from the officers of the Wheeling packet on T. McCombs, that the steamer Messenger, bound St. Louis for Pittsburgh, struck a rock at the foot of Phillips, about eight miles below Rochester, on Saturday evening, and sunk in five feet of water. The ident was not discovered until that boat was near s considerable quantity of water in the hold. The ching it she sank.

The boat, we believe is owned at Cincinnati, and has been in command of Capt. Kyle for the past year or two. It is thought that she can be raised with little difficulty. The Westmoreland was aground at the "sawyers" on Sunday morning, and it was feared that she would be to remain there until we have another rise.

OFFICE OF THE LOUISVILLE DEMOCRAT
Thursday Evening, December 12.

The money market is rather quiet to-day, there being evident disposition to await the result of the movements of the army as reported on the streets. There is definite idea what those movements are, but there are many rumors in circulation, all, however, agreeing that our forces have made, and are now making an advance, and in pretty heavy columns. But whether an
